The numbers indicate the instruction from the “COG Activity – Second Week of Advent.” The goal was to make a star. How did you do?

It really doesn't matter what your image was because it was your interpretation of what my instructions were. I wanted a certain thing (a star), I had the expectation explained (instructions), and you drew based on the instructions (your image).

This is very much like how the Bible is viewed. God wanted us to be a certain way...good, caring, holy, loving (the star). The way to do that was shared through and by Holy people; prophets and disciples wrote those guidelines into a collection of books known as the Holy Bible (the instructions). As people with God-given freewill, we interpret those guidelines and apply them the way we feel is right (the final image). Sometimes we end up with a star, but most often we don't make that perfect star. It doesn't matter what our image looks like, God loves us simply as we are, as we change; trying to be the image He wants us to be.
